

TRADE TALK

Face the World pulls in nearly $1 million for the hungry

But attendees were starving as well, as Japanese-styled dinner was delayed to accommodate those arriving late from Canucks game

MALCOLM PARRY

VANCOUVER SUN

FACTS FACED: The Face The World charity gala ran recently at Jacqui Cohen's Point Grey waterfront home, with Premier Christy Clark reluctant to face predecessor Gordon Campbell — in photos, at least. The event's 21st running raised a reported $900,000 for some who otherwise might go hungry.

Attendees sure were when dinner by David Aisenstat's Ki Modern Japanese + Bar was long delayed to accommodate heavy-billfold supporters' attendance at a Canucks-Bruins hockey game. They included Jamie King, whose wife Christie vamped in a raffle-prize Smart car with Sarah Arison of the Miami Heat team-owning clan.

A year's use of the tiny jalopy went to La Stella and Le Vieux Pin wineries principal Saeedeh Salem, who may no more drive it than shop at The Bay. That could change in February, when a 20,000-square-foot version of the Toronto Bay's The Room offers high-fashion lines on our downtown store's second floor.

Cut loose with Campbell's demise, 10-year aide Lara Dauphinee soon got hired by mining mogul Frank Giustra, who had TV's Shopping Bags Anna Wallner and Kristina Maticic on each hand at FTW's late supper. As for emcees and former broadcasters Vicki Gabereau and Pamela Martin, Cohen cracked: "I can't imagine why the two of you are unemployed."

Joining Face The World director Jim Byrnes to play for dancing, Steve Dawson said their upcoming fifth CD will feature "mostly obscure country songs from the 1940s and 1950 — like Jim's old blues songs." Yippee, sez I.

Samantha Freeze, Aleisha Jones and Ania Piwko encourage Face The World attendees to also show some gold.

Premier Christy Clark cheek-to-cheek with Jacqui Cohen at the latter's 21st Face The World gala banquet.

Sarah Arison and Christie King try a Smart car on for size at Face The World.